Dear Sir or Madam

The Office of Qualifications and Examinations Regulation (Ofqual) is the independent regulator of qualifications, examinations and assessments in England and vocational qualifications in Northern Ireland.

Ofqual is a non-Ministerial Government Department, meaning we are accountable directly to Parliament and not to Ministers. It was established by the Apprenticeships, Schools, Children and Learning (ASCL) Act 2009, with some powers varied by the Education Act 2011.

I can confirm that Pearson Education Limited (trading as Pearson Edexcel, Pearson BTEC, Pearson LCCI and Pearson EDI) is recognised as an awarding organisation and regulated by Ofqual. The qualifications that Pearson Education Limited offer in England that are regulated by us are listed on the register of qualifications.

More information about Ofqual and the register can be found on our website www.ofqual.gov.uk

Yours faithfully

Gary Fisher
